Many laptops use a proprietary port, which means they are not available for use on a PC running a different operating system. Some newer laptops use the standard USB port and can be used on a PC. If a laptop cannot be used on a PC, the driver that is available on the laptop itself might not be compatible with a PC. If you are running a new PC, it is important to download the right drivers for your laptop to ensure your computer has the best performance. For more information, see 'Installing the drivers for your computer' on the Microsoft. When you purchase a laptop, the laptop comes with a device driver. If you have a new PC, this driver is not on the PC itself, but you might find it on the laptop if it came with the computer. If you do not find the driver on the PC, you can download the driver from the manufacturer of the laptop. You may also need to install the driver on your

PC. For more information, see 'Installing the drivers for your computer' on the Microsoft. Lenovo Tips: Customize Your Keyboard A keyboard is the most frequently used part of your laptop. The keyboard lets you type text and enter commands. You can customize your keyboard to make it easier to enter commands and to help your typing speed. It is possible to change the keyboard's font and size, for example, to make the keys smaller, or to make some characters easier to type than others. You can also change how you enter commands. You can change the keyboard's layout to make it easier to type specific letters, such as Q, W, and E. You can also use shortcuts, such as a shortcut key for opening the Start menu or Windows. When you are ready to customize your keyboard, follow these steps: 1. On the Settings screen, click the Keyboard icon. This is in the bottom-left corner of the Settings screen. 2. On the Keyboard page, click the Layout tab. 3. Click the button next to the keyboard layout you want to change. For example, click qwerty to change to the keyboard layout for the QWERTY keyboard. 4. Click the button next to the keys you want to change. For example, click the button next to the letters Q, W, E to change the keyboard layout to EZ Keyboard for the letters Q, W, and E. 5. Click the button next to the numbers you want
